

Learn Before You Return

Tips for Returning to the Office

If you are bringing equipment back to the office, there are a few important reminders to be aware of before you return.

1

Disinfect your equipment

Cleaning and disinfecting your equipment on a regular basis isn't just crucial for the device, it removes dangerous germs that may be harmful to you and others.

Let's do this!

What you need before you begin...

Disposable gloves and one-use disinfecting wipes that can both kill germs and are safe to use on electronics. If you don't have these items, refer to the CDC's COVID-19 guidance for disinfecting electronics.

How to disinfect your equipment...

Turn off devices and disconnect power. Using moist (not dripping wet) wipes or microfiber cloth, gently wipe the surfaces to be cleaned. Ensure surfaces have completely air-dried before turning the device on.

Best practices for packing up your gear

- Label your cords before unplugging them (what it's for, where to plug it in).
- When labeled, wind up cords and store in a container or plastic bag – keep with PC.
- If boxing, mark the boxes. If not boxing, be careful carrying and packing in your car.
- When packing in your car, pack in a way to ensure nothing can shift while in transit.
