"The award was given to communities that showed the strength of their civic capital... and provided examples of work to improve the health and well-being of young people and, by extension, all residents," according to a release from the National Civic League.

"Mesa is an All-American City. This year's theme was youth engagement and our application put a

The city of Mesa presented Project Lit, Hacktivate, SPARC (Sports Program Activities Reuniting Communities), the Mayor Youth Committee, and Mesa College Promise to a panel of national judges this weekend. The projects are part of the Together Mesa diversity initiatives.

“This award is a testament to Mesa’s commitment to future generations and the impact many of our City programs have on our youth,” said Mesa City Manager Chris Brady in a release. “We are incredibly proud of the work of the delegation in Denver and can’t wait to celebrate this enormous achievement.”
