Staff report

The College of St. Scholastica, a private Catholic Benedictine school, offers access to online graduate-level certificate programs to Arizona students.

The certificate programs focus on in-demand skill areas and some credits may be applied to a master's degree.

St. Scholastica recently launched a social work program in partnership with Mesa Community College.

Other online graduate certificates the college offers are in teaching licensure, educational technology, computer science education, health care and nursing informatics, finance and health care administration.

Certificate

In Arizona, St. Scholastica offers degrees in health information management, nursing and social work.
