Recommended Project Guidelines and Examples for Honors Contracts at Mesa Community College

The goal of the Honors Contract is to encourage students to go beyond their normal class requirements to achieve a deeper knowledge and understanding of the course topic and materials. The MCCCDCD wants our honors students to: 1) think critically, 2) communicate effectively, 3) demonstrate integrity, and 4) prepare for future success. We hope that each student's project will help him or her achieve these goals.

The Honors Program is well aware of the great variation in classes here at MCC. But in each we would like the student to take their educational experience to the next level. We request that all contracts consist of some form of research and writing. This can be combined with a hands-on project, volunteer work, or something else appropriate for your class. Original research is as acceptable as a library research topic. In classes where you have multiple students completing contracts, it might be possible for them to complete a joint research paper and presentation or project.

Hopefully, each student will develop an Honors Contract topic that will interest him or her and fit the class topic. Generally Honors Contracts should require the student to do several tasks to foster their educational development. These tasks should include:

- 1) Research component: Students should investigate their topic in a manner appropriate to the course and the discipline they are studying.
- 2) Writing component: Some form of written summary of their research and conclusions is appropriate (length MUST be indicated). We require a minimum of three (3) - five (5) pages written.
- 3) Presentation component: Please allow time in your classes for the student to present their research project to the class. Alternatively, the students can verbally present their project to you, present a PowerPoint presentation, or an audio visual presentation (length MUST be indicated).

MCC librarians have generously agreed to provide research assistance to honors students for their honors projects. For their research, we would like students to examine a variety of sources, including on-line, print, and professional journals. While any librarian can assist your student with their research, the following individual is the lead librarian:

HUMAN SUBJECTS RESEARCH: If Human Subjects research is conducted, include documentation of approval.

Does the student project involve human subject research? A "yes" response indicates:

- Data is being obtained through interaction with living individuals and
- Results are intended to be used to "add to the body of knowledge" in a field (i.e., by presentation outside of the classroom).

If you answered yes to the above question, the project requires review by the IRB/CRRC committee, which oversees the treatment of human subjects.
