

Jimmy Scott
Owner of Native Diagnostic Imaging, LLC

Yá'áát'ééh,

Táchii'nii nishł'j, Naahitii éi ba shísh íín, 'Ashjiihii éi da shicheii, Naahitii éi dashináíí."

Shí éi Jimmy Scott yínishyé'. Ákót'éego diné nishłj.

(I am of the Red Running into Water clan, born for African Americans, my maternal father's clan is the Salt people clan and my paternal grandfather is African American. In this way I am a Navajo person.)

I graduated from Mesa Community College in 1998 with an Associate's (AAS) degree in Management. Simultaneously, I held a part-time internship in the Materials Management department at Allied Signal Aerospace, Inc. where I honed my skills in every facet of the business. I earned my Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Management in 2000 from the University of Arizona. I also received my MBA in 2005 from the University of Phoenix.

I started my first company, Krimson Corporation in 2001, which sold the Hip-Slider golf pouch that I designed and manufactured. I later started two businesses, Fahrenheit Tanning Salon and Louisiana Famous Fried Chicken. I made a career change into Pharmaceuticals for Daiichi Sankyo as a primary care sales representative before landing my dream career with Siemens Medical Solution as an account executive working closely with Arizona hospitals. In this role I met with department heads at Dignity Health, Northern Arizona Healthcare, Summit Regional Healthcare, and Indian Health Services (IHS) discussing and planning their 4-7-year capital plans. I especially enjoyed traveling across the Navajo Nation and building relationships with shi k'é, my relatives.

After five years as a General Imaging Account Executive II, I accepted reality I missed being an entrepreneur at heart. This is why Native Diagnostic Imaging was born. My objective is to help Indian health services procure the best diagnostic imaging equipment that meets the needs of diverse Native communities and be a consistent presence among Native peoples.

